

Generation Gap

Description

What is generation gap :-

- Generation gap is a term referring to differences between younger generation and their elders. Especially it is the difference between parents and children regarding culture, fashion and dressing etc.

Reasons :-

- The main reason is lack of communication and understanding.
- Fast growing culture.
- Gradual disappearance of joint family system.
- People who got addicted to a particular life style find it very difficult to try a new life style.

Problems :-

- Misunderstandings and arguments.
- Taking sudden decisions such as leaving home, breaking relationships etc.

Solutions :-

- Parents and children must spend some time together regularly and they should try to understand each other.
- Proper guidance for children from elders.
- In-spite of fast growing culture, children must try to understand their elderâ€™s words as they already passed their age. And young generation must know that parents always make us go through the correct path.

- Parents must try to understand that the present world is not same as it is 20 years ago. They must give enough freedom to their children.
- Joint families is also the solution. Because the relationship between children and their grandparents is very effective in bridging the generation gap.

Conclusion :-

Communicating and being friendly with each other, younger generation and their elders will not suffer from Generation gap.

Your Turn :-

What are your thoughts on this topic? Feel free to express your opinion in the comment section below.

Copyright @ Group Discussion Ideas.